

Sinclair
Broadcasting's
decision to force
their stations to
air an anti-Kerry
documentary days
before the election
is an unacceptable
abuse of a public
resource.

When I turn on my television I expect
to see content that
will entertain and
inform me. I expect to rest comfortably
knowing that all
around America,
people are being
entertained and informed. In the same way that I do
not expect the citizens of this country to be
inundated with
pornography, filthy
language, and
gratuitous violence,
I do not expect us
to be inundated with
biased campaign
films thinly
disguised as
documentaries,
bought and paid for
by the wealthy and
powerful moguls who
now comander our airwaves and
presented to an unsuspecting public
as "news." The lies
and distortions fed
to the American public under the guise of "campaign
commercials" has
been bad enough.
This is
unacceptable, and it is an outrage. It
is propaganda
spoon-fed to the masses by the people
in power to support
their own political agenda, and makes us
no better than a
communist state.

A film about Vietnam
veterans who love
Bush so slavishly

that they would do
anything for him, or
who are so bitter
that they are willing to blame a
few anti-war
activists for all
their war-time
suffering is hardly news. It is a sad
and pathetic sight,
but it is not news.

The only newsworthy
thing about this
story is the
compelling fact that some people in this country--people who
never served in combat--are willing to sink to the slimy
depths of exploiting
the pain and
confusion of Vietnam
veterans, planting
doubts in citizens'
minds about their
honor, and
re-opening the
wounds from that war
to get re-elected.

Please, please do
not allow this
un-American travesty
to take place in our country.
